Welcome...

to the 2026 edition of Stock Check. The team at Speciality Food love putting this guide together every year. It's a culmination of all the yummy products we've tried and discovered across the last 12 months, trends we've spotted, and the latest, newest goodies to stock your shelves, counters and chillers.

We're delighted this year to partner with IFE to produce Stock Check. As one of the UK's biggest food and drink events, they share our passion for excellence and great taste. Inside, we're sure you'll find plenty to inspire your buying decisions.

CHARLOTTE SMITH-JARVIS
SPECAILITY FOOD MAGAZINE

At IFE, we're proud to champion the incredible diversity and quality of the UK and international artisan and speciality food and drink sector.

Independent producers and retailers bring passion, authenticity, and creativity to the industry, and their contribution is vital to the continued growth and success of our event.

Each year, we see more buyers looking for products with provenance, story, and craftsmanship, and that's exactly what these businesses deliver.

We're delighted to celebrate them in this year's Stock Check and look forward to showcasing the very best artisan food & drink at IFE 2026, coming to Excel London on 30th March to 1st April 2026.

GRUYÈRE AOP

Made in western Switzerland, Gruyère AOP has been produced in the same way since 1115AD, using raw milk from cows fed on grass in summer and hay in winter. The skilled cheesemakers use 400 litres of fresh milk to make a single 35kg Gruyère AOP wheel. It is the only cheese that has won the title of Best Cheese in the World at the World Cheese Awards four times, which just goes to show how much work and skill is needed to create its unique and delicious flavour. Gruyère AOP can be found with different maturities: the Classic is matured for a minimum of five months and has a delicate, nutty, creamy flavour. The Reserve is matured for a minimum of 10 months and has a drier, more grainy mouthfeel, with a stronger flavour. The age brings a difference in taste but the recipe always stays the same.

Lincolnshire Poacher Cheese

A distinctive, Alpine-style cheese, made with unpasteurised milk from Holstein Friesian cows. This tasty expression is matured to around 14 months and has a bold, upfront taste.

CHAMPIONING SPECIALITY FOOD AND DRINK AT IFE 2026

IFE - the ultimate business event for food and drink discovery in the UK – returns next spring

When IFE returns to Excel London from 30th March to 1st April 2026, it will once again bring together the global food and drink community for three unmissable days of discovery, tasting, and conversation.

As the UK's largest and most comprehensive food and drink trade event, IFE is a key platform for retailers, wholesalers, hospitality professionals, and importers seeking the new and traditional products, insight, and inspiration from across the sector.

HIGHLIGHTS FOR 2026

IFE 2026 will feature 15 dedicated sections designed to make product sourcing as seamless and relevant as possible. From Bakery, Snacks & Confectionery, to Health, Organic & Natural, and Cheese & Dairy, visitors will find a carefully curated showcase of premium products from the UK and around the world.

Among the highlights of the show is the Artisan Food section, which shines a spotlight on small-batch producers, heritage makers, and regional specialists offering high-quality, distinctive products. From handcrafted condiments, to traditionally matured cheeses and indulgent sweet treats, the area celebrates authenticity and craftsmanship, giving buyers a chance to meet the people behind the products and hear their stories firsthand.

New for 2026 is the Sports & Nutrition section, responding to growing demand for functional foods, performance nutrition, and better-for-you options. This area will bring together brands focused on health, recovery, and sustainable performance, offering everything from protein-rich snacks to innovative supplements and functional beverages.

Emerging brands will once again take centre stage in the Start-Up Market, a vibrant hub packed with exciting young businesses that represent the future of food and drink. Visitors can expect to discover inventive new concepts, entrepreneurial flair, and product ideas that are ready to disrupt established categories.

UNMISSABLE INSIGHTS

Beyond the show floor, IFE's extensive seminar programme will deliver practical insight and thought leadership from across the industry. The Future

Food Stage will feature panels and discussions from leading experts and brands, exploring key topics such as consumer trends, sustainability, and retail strategy. Meanwhile, the Trends & Innovation Platform will examine what's next for the industry, offering evidence-based analysis and real-world case studies to help businesses plan for the future.

The New Products Discovery Theatre is another must-visit feature, where attendees can discover cutting-edge products and hear directly from the people bringing them to market. It's an ideal opportunity for buyers to explore new tastes and formats, meet founders, and experience firsthand the creativity driving the sector forward.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR NETWORKING AND DISCOVERY

IFE's commitment to quality, discovery, and connection is echoed by the buyers who return year after year.

For Ed Ayton, sustainability and ethics advisor at Abel & Cole, IFE provides both inspiration and efficiency, "Meeting brands, tasting products and talking shop normally sap the energy, but at IFE you make it easy to spend a whole day doing just that. We always walk away with everything we needed and more from this event," he says.

Jean Rossignol, senior buyer dairy and beverage at Classic Fine Foods, said, "So much variety and choice and beautiful products. The speakers and panel discussions were really insightful too. I would like to thank the team for consistently exceeding expectations for IFE. This Fair has now turned into a necessary visit for all traders based within the UK."

Whether it's uncovering artisan producers, learning about the latest nutrition trends, or meeting the next generation of food entrepreneurs, IFE 2026 promises to be an essential date in the calendar for anyone serious about speciality food and drink.

EXHIBIT OR VISIT

IFE 2026 takes place at Excel London from 30th March to 1st April 2026 as part of Food, Drink & Hospitality Week.

Made in western Switzerland, Gruyère AOP has been produced in the same way since 1115AD, using raw milk from cows fed on grass in summer and hay in winter. The skilled cheesemakers use 400 litres of fresh milk to make a single 35kg Gruyère AOP wheel. It is the only cheese that has won the title of Best Cheese in the World at the World Cheese Awards four times, which just goes to show how much work and skill is needed to create its unique and delicious flavour. Gruyère AOP can be found with different maturities: the Classic is matured for a minimum of five months and has a delicate, nutty, creamy flavour. The Reserve is matured for a minimum of 10 months and has a drier, more grainy mouthfeel, with a stronger flavour. The age brings a difference in taste but the recipe always stays the same.

HOW TO APPEAL TO GEN Z

A new, younger type of consumer is emerging in the artisan sector. But what are they looking for, and how can retailers meet their needs? Here's everything you need to know

One of the joys of the speciality food and drink arena is that it's a moveable feast. Independent brands and retailers can be nimble and reactive. They can respond to 'the next big thing' in the blink of an eye. The latest trends aren't five board meetings and six months out of reach – the decision to tap into them can be made almost instantaneously. And that's perhaps one of the biggest appeals to the sector's newest wave of shoppers – Gen Z – who are (where they can afford to) feeling the waters in the artisan market, which aligns with many of their values.

WHO ARE GEN Z?

Gen Z (also known as Zoomers) were born between 1997 and 2012, putting them at between 12 and 27-years-old. Chatter is ongoing in the food and drink community about how this generation is impacting the speciality sphere, with these young shoppers (and food and drink entrepreneurs) plucked out as being the driving force behind innovation.

From demanding better ethics and sustainability from brands, to exploring niche flavour profiles they've been exposed to on social media, and seeking out experiential shopping – word on the shop floor is they want to know more about food, the way it's produced, and its impact on both their own health and the health of the planet.

"Consider Gen Z as game changers," says Tom Gatehouse, senior trends strategist at Egg Soldiers. "They're fundamentally embracers of the new and the different, so it's no surprise that brands positioning themselves as game-changing (be it through philosophy, product application, or indeed flavour profile), are finding success."

Jeremy King, CEO and founder of consumer research platform, Attest, says its annual consumer trends survey revealed Gen Z shoppers tend to have a significantly more positive outlook than other age groups, with 73% stating they feel 'positive' or 'very positive' He believes they're spending less cautiously than older counterparts, with 45% of those asked saying they're happy to shop freely.

Additionally, Attest's data found, "Gen Z consumers are also significantly more likely to be prepared to pay a premium for environmentally friendly/ ethical products. Nearly 76% state they will pay more, versus 59% of shoppers in general. However, besides trying to buy from environmentally friendly brands, Gen Z under-index for other sustainable behaviours,

IFE International Food & Drink Event
PART OF Food Drink & Hospitality Week
30 March to 01 April Excel, London

such as recycling and trying to use less single-use plastic."

HOW ARE GEN Z SHOPPING?

Matt Smith, at analyst GWI, says many of Gen Z's most distinctive purchase drivers, compared to the average shopper, revolve around social media – a key touchpoint for them. They are 108% more likely to take recommendations for a product or company online, 101% more likely to use the 'option to buy' button on a social network, 70% more attracted to exclusive content or services, 136% more likely to discover new products via vlogs, and 92% more likely than the average consumer to be influenced by sponsored content on podcasts.

Laura Vogen, founder of S'More 'a' Licious, says she has noticed a real change in the types of people buying her products, with a skew to a younger, Gen Z audience. "I've found that in the past year we have had a lot more of this bracket shopping with us and sharing our products, and there has been a bit of a shift in our consumer base age-wise," she explains. "I believe Gen Z do spend a lot of time scrolling socials and are very influenced to purchase if they see content on TikTok and Instagram, and especially from content creators with a large following."

Laura thinks that experience is playing a vital part in their buying decisions as well. "This bracket loves the complete experience with food," she adds, "which includes the unboxing experience, so packaging is super important, along with an aesthetically pleasing look and good quality produce."

She has found that, "Gen Z don't mind spending more on luxury food items and tend to treat themselves to higher end items" which are unique and not "run-of-the-mill".

HOW ARE GEN Z INFLUENCING FOOD AND DRINK?

"There's an energy and playfulness in Gen Z's approach to disruption," explains Tom, which he says is important to take note of, particularly when it comes to younger brands from founders within this bracket. "You can see potential even at the smallest industry level," he adds. "Look at someone like Beanie Bun, a small meat-free burger shop and stall in Newcastle. They've launched a plant-based maple mustard mayonnaise into retail – an interesting proposition on its own.

"Then you see the branding. Ultra-simple, yet immediately eye-catching, clearly made with care and creativity. The product itself is named 'Mmm' and it's made of seven base ingredients, including Grade A Canadian maple syrup and Beanie Bun's house-made aquafaba mayo."

Tom points to the playfulness in the naming of the product, the sense of individualism in design, consideration of quality, and desire to be as 'clean' as possible, as being typical of Gen Z brands emerging today.

"For brands, finding favour with Gen Z means elements of throwing the rule book out the window, certainly in NPD and brand positioning."

Statista's data aligns with Tom's thoughts, that social media is the main factor separating Gen Z from others. During their lifetime social platforms have become vital information hubs for them, often surpassing search engines as their primary online channels for brand and product research. In 2022, Statista states around a quarter of Gen Z in the US, for example, said the number of 'likes' or positive comments on a social post could drive them to make a purchase.

WHAT ARE GEN Z LOOKING FOR WHEN THEY SHOP?

What we're seeing, with Gen Z, says Matt, is that they are value driven, and 12% more likely to take up offers or coupons than the average consumer...but, despite this, they are less likely to seek out own-brand products when it comes to treats such as ice cream, where they will actively look for more indulgent options.

GWI's data on Gen Z, Matt says, also shows they are 48% more likely to look for businesses that offer customisation or personalisation. And when it comes to health, they prefer products with higher protein (32% more), nutritional benefits (24% more), that are organic (21% more) or low carb (12% more).

"Gen Z shoppers are obsessed with balancing delicious meals whilst being affordable and within limited steps," says Hannah Wheater from The Flava People. "Our seasoning sachets are a perfect example of the way younger consumers over-index in seasoning products. You can create one crave-worthy flavour combination in just one sprinkle."

This generation are "far more health conscious when it comes to home cooking," she adds. "They're looking to use fresh ingredients." Which plays right into the hands of farm shops and specialist grocers.

7 WAYS RETAILERS CAN ATTRACT GEN Z SHOPPERS

1 Tom says there's no 'right way' to grab their attention, but it's "pretty clear that establishing an organic connection between them, your brand and your products yields fruit".

2 As Gen Z are looking more keenly at ingredient decks, checking for clear messaging and choosing interesting flavour profiles, Hannah says these are all considerations for brands and retailers, who must also up their game digitally to stay ahead of the curve. "Gen Z consumer shopping habits are hugely influenced by digital means," she says. "Retailers need to be conscious of how they're marketing to this demographic, and not just scooping them into the same category as other consumer groups." She says stores should "tweak" their offering and tone of voice through digital marketing efforts.

3 That's not to say bricks and mortar don't matter. According to UK POS, 54% of Millennials, and 51% of Gen Z say they are most likely to shop for food and drink in a physical shop, with 81% saying this is because they find being out and about in the 'real world' provides relief from the stress of the online world. This poses a golden opportunity for independents, though UK POS adds retailers should not rest their laurels entirely on the products they stock. "They have to offer something more."

4 UK POS reports Gen Z and Millennials prefer shopping at small, local businesses where they can reach out and make connections. If your business has strong community ties or champions local causes, make sure you shout about what you're doing.

5 Gen Z are heavy smartphone users. Lean into this and entice them into store with online in-store only deals, loyalty schemes and the opportunity to click and collect.

6 According to Statista, though they value ethics and quality, Zoomers aren't afraid to sit around and wait for products to land in the 'yellow sticker' section, or be discounted. Work out what these shoppers are after in your shop, and see how you can better promote or run offers on products they're attracted to, to entice impulse buying and build future loyalty.

7 Farm shops and delis need to understand Gen Z and cater to them, says Edward Berry of The Flying Fork. "If you're only selling traditional cuts of meat, and things they don't understand, you'll lose them. Make sure your comms are aimed at them. They are looking for fun, modern messages. They want to know about sourcing and food miles. They will ask more challenging questions. They want an experience. and there's no reason why independent retail can't give them those experiences.
