Taking stock

Consumer tastes, preferences and demands change swifter than the seasons, and it's all too easy to think that by stocking the classics, presenting them well and offering your customers service with a smile that your job is done. However, one of the most exciting things about the food and drink industry – particularly within the speciality sector – is that innovation is constant. There will always be the classics, the cornerstones of your counters and shelves, but it's important to keep up with the trends to stay ahead of the curve.

That's where Stock Check comes in. Consider this your handy guide to all things food and drink in 2017–18, offering not only the established brands you know and love, but also the up-and-coming producers worth keeping an eye on. You'll find new and exciting products throughout the pages of this publication, but we've taken it up a notch by highlighting some of the products which beat hundreds of others to be shortlisted in this year's New Producer Awards, too. Not only are each and every one of these products delicious, but they all have a story to share with you, and for you to share with your customers.

Enjoy our pick of the industry's very best food and drink.

THE EXPANSION FACTOR

How can a café, takeaway service or gift shop add value and what should be considered? John Bensalhia reports

Home sweet home can also be a source of great value. A lick of paint here, a new carpet there, and in some case, an extended kitchen or brand new attic room. Refurbishment and expansion are not only good ideas for getting ahead on the property ladder, they are also two key watchwords in the case of retail business.

By either refurbishing the building or adding the likes of a café, takeaway service or gift shop, retail businesses are creating extra value and interest for customers. Heidi Easton, marketing manager at the Shop and Display Equipment Association (SDEA), says that the key benefits of such initiatives would be ultimately increased revenue and footfall, both working in unison to propel the brand forwards.

"In today's increasingly competitive marketplace, differentiation is the key so there is every reason to incorporate a food, drink or gift offer. Customers love that little bit extra, something new and exciting! Whether that is a gourmet coffee and cake café or a dazzling delicatessen, the results are the same; increased customer dwell time and loyalty leads to the retailer in question becoming a destination in its own right, and one that will be revisited time and again."

"There has been a growing increase in retail land to have multi concept businesses all underneath one roof," says Gerry Moss, retail development manager at WBC. "Whether this dual retail model is one business acting as two fractions or two respective businesses sharing a singular space, the results usually promote and create dynamic retail experiences for customers."

Gerry says that there are three key benefits of a dual concept business: potential cross pollinating of product and brand identity, enhanced customer experience and bigger opportunities for sales and higher spends.

"Years ago, I was the food buyer for Flaneur Food Hall," adds Gerry. "This once fashionable food hotspot featured a deli nestled within an upmarket restaurant. Customers who dined there were inspired and tempted to purchase additional items from the radiating food hall based on their dining experience. This innovative set up became an ingredient lead food journey, in terms of what was on the menu and how it related to boost sales within the food hall. The two concepts successfully played off one another, creating a unique eating experience and an inspirational shopping experience."

Cost effective

"The main benefit of expanding a retail business is increased turnover," says Createpose director Ken Corsie.

"The key is looking at the project with a holistic approach from the beginning and preparing in detail asking yourself questions about available budget and the best ways to spend investment. What is your product offer going to be? Always remember to look at your direct competitors and see what is working for them. What is successful? But be sure to differentiate your offer and be individual. Ensure that you have looked closely at the payback period within which you will recoup your initial investment and turn this into profitability as quickly as you can."

Take a good look

When it comes to the retail interior of the new café or gift store, Heidi Easton says that a clean, fuss-free look is recommended. “There are many options available but essentially, in order to create a good store, the design should be clean and uncluttered. A mix of small tables and chairs, comfy sofas and coffee tables within a café invite the customer to sit down and relax. A streamlined, neatly merchandised shop encourages the customer to browse the entire product range at leisure. Nowadays, provided the overall look is cohesive in colour, design and materials, or entirely uncoordinated chintz (if this is the look you are aiming for), the store will attract new customers.”

“Other ideas that could be considered in a new or revamped store include perimeter shelving that are similar in look and feel to the café tables and chairs. These can be used to good effect, showcasing a range of off-site consumption goods for the customer: perhaps sampled in-store and then packaged to take away. A well designed glass counter used to showcase cakes, pastries and other delicacies ideally placed within full view of customers-by is vital; it will tempt customers in and help increase individual spend. There should also be plenty of room for customers to move around and space set aside for queuing at peak times.”

Browser becomes buyer

Gerry Moss says that a main reason for refurbishment will be to convert a browser into a buyer. “Take a look at how you communicate with your customers through in store displays. When you’re busy serving other customers or managing other tasks, it can be hard to reach every shopper that walks through the door. Part of a refurbishment can include reassessing these areas. Can your customer clearly see the prices? Can they see the ‘why-to-buy’? From simple messages written by hand on blackboards to more complex merchandising displays, the point of all POS and signage is to give customers just the right amount of information to encourage them to buy, and buy now! The best advice is keep it simple and do it well.”

In addition to the design, layout and look of the refurbished or expanded area, the product offer is important for a successful café or gift shop. Ken Corsie comments: “Look at the café or gift shop as an extension of your existing food or retail offer, and consider how can you cross sell products. For instance, always refer back to the café for products that you are selling in store for customers to purchase on the way out to eat at home.”

Naming local suppliers on your café menu and referring to the provenance of products are also ways of engaging customers. “Know your customers and their spending habits, ensure that your pricing reflects their expectations, and research this on a regular basis,” says Ken. “Find out which are your hero products and why they are popular. Support these with your other products, but also change your menu or products on a seasonal basis. Keep your brand and offers at all times FRESH: Fun, Relevant, Engaging, Social and Helpful.”

“This will help with customer engagement and keep them wanting and looking for more, this will build long term customer loyalty. Look at the customer as a real relationship and keep it interesting and new at all times. Customers are looking for engagement, and the brands that get it right means the difference between a single sale and a loyal, lifelong customer.”

16-18 April 2018 NEC Birmingham

FARM SHOP & DELI SHOW RAMPS UP PLANS FOR 2018

Farm Shop & Deli Show 2018 returns to the NEC from 16th-18th April

Whether you're an independent farm shop, delicatessen or artisan food outlet, the Farm Shop & Deli Show will be the place to be in April. The sector's leading event will return to the NEC from 16-18 April, alongside four other events that cover the entire food and drink supply chain.

Visitors to the show will be able to source the newest and most innovative products from more than 450 companies, while hearing about the latest industry trends and from the leading figures in the UK's artisan food and drink industry.

The range of exhibitors at the Farm Shop & Deli Show will cover all aspects of the speciality sector, giving farm shops, delicatessen, bakers, butchers and garden centres the opportunity to source quality produce that will fuel growth throughout 2018.

Among the companies exhibiting their products and services in April will be: Diverse Fine Food Distribution, Rowcliffe, Cook, Global Payments, Lakeland Computers, Empire Bespoke Foods, Tenuta Marmorelle, Yorkshire Baker

“It really is a wonderful show and I have met some great contacts. You're never done learning and I really have met some amazing suppliers for both machinery and products. This is definitely something which will be on the annual calendar. It's a great show, so diverse and one I couldn't recommend more” and Bonta Italia.

JAMES CUNNINGHAM, DIRECTOR OF CUNNINGHAM BUTCHERY AND FOOD HALL

One of the highlights of the show will be the Farm Shop & Deli Awards. Now entering their fifth year, they will reveal the crème de la crème of British independent retailers. A panel of judges – including food and drink broadcaster Nigel Barden, plus representatives from Neal's Yard

Dairy, Booths, Iceland Foods and British Baker – will score stores based on levels of service, innovation and community involvement in speciality retail. Category and regional winners, as well as the overall Farm Shop & Deli Retailer of the Year will be announced at Farm Shop & Deli Show on Monday, 16 April 2018.

“ Farm Shop & Deli Show is very valuable – it’s a fantastic opportunity to find out lots of new products and suppliers as well as new kit and equipment. Quite a lot of our buying decisions are made by coming here. A show like this is brilliant because there are so many suppliers to see ”

LISA GRAYSON, COMPANY DIRECTOR,
COURT FARM SHOP

The Farm Shop & Deli Live area will once again host an insightful and comprehensive educational programme. Visitors will benefit from live demonstrations, topical debates, tastings and presentations given by industry leaders, who will give them inspiration for the next stage in their businesses.

Additionally, a team of professionals will judge the Britain’s Best Loaf competition, which has become the talk of the craft bakery sector since its inception. Awards will be presented to the bakers excelling in five categories – Sourdough, Wholegrain, White, Innovation and Gluten Free.

Dan Eversfield, Commercial Manager at Farm Shop & Deli Show said, “Artisan food continues to be one of the success stories of the UK food and drink industry. Farm Shop & Deli Show will showcase the very best products that our country has to offer, providing invaluable inspiration for businesses in the UK and further afield.”

Farm Shop & Deli Show is co-located with the UK’s largest food and drink trade event – Food & Drink Expo – National Convenience Show and Foodex, as well as the new The Ingredients Show. Together they will bring together suppliers from across the whole food and drink industry, from retailers to manufacturers.

Made in western Switzerland, Gruyère AOP has been produced in the same way since 1115AD, using raw milk from cows fed on grass in summer and hay in winter. The skilled cheesemakers use 400 litres of fresh milk to make a single 35kg Gruyère AOP wheel. It is the only cheese that has won the title of Best Cheese in the World at the World Cheese Awards four times, which just goes to show how much work and skill is needed to create its unique and delicious flavour.

Gruyère AOP can be found with different maturities: the Classic is matured for a minimum of five months and has a delicate, nutty, creamy flavour. The Reserve is matured for a minimum of ten months and has a drier, more grainy mouthfeel, with a stronger flavour. The age brings a difference in taste but the recipe always stays the same.

Meadowy sweetness from the ewe's milk balances with tangy blue flavours and saltiness to deliver a rich and complex experience to the palate.

A favourite of chef's Rick Stein and Raymond Blanc, Mrs Bell's Blue is as creamy as her sister cow's milk blue cheese, Yorkshire Blue, but whiter in appearance. Once we've handmade and salted each batch, they're matured for a minimum of 10 weeks. This achieves the complex blue flavour that's comparable to Roquefort but creamier and less salty. Launched in 1997, Mrs Bell's Blue made an immediate mark by winning two gold medals and Reserve Supreme Champion at the prestigious Nantwich International Cheese Show, more recently Mrs Bells Blue has won Super Gold in 2016 at the World Cheese Awards in San Sebastian and in the same year Champion Ewe's Milk Cheese Trophy at Nantwich International Cheese Awards.

It's tricky to find a person that doesn't like pizza. It's versatile, convenient and the ultimate go-to meal to share between many – that's why the Italian dish has long been a favourite for dining in or out. However, it is often said that it's nigh-on impossible to come across a quality pizza range that's accessible for all, including vegans, vegetarians and those who follow free-from diets. Until now.

Formed by a trio of friends who led an Oxford pub to the top of the TripAdvisor pizza restaurant list, The White Rabbit Pizza Co. is revolutionising the free-from aisles. Serving up a slice of stone-baked goodness and without a crumb of cauliflower base in sight, the team worked for over a year to perfect their award-winning, 100% organic, gluten and dairy-free bases.

The range currently consists of seven delicious flavours, including Mozzarella Fella, Smokin' Vegan and Disco Inferno, with a plain base twin pack available for those who wish to create a bespoke pie. With an RRP of £4.99, these pizzas are currently taking the free-from market and pizza world by storm.

Le Gruyère AOP Switzerland.
A 900-year tradition of artisanal cheesemaking.

The makers of Gruyère AOP have been producing artisanal cheese since long before your customers were looking for it. technique and knowledge. Le Gruyère AOP Switzerland is 100% natural and 100% additive free, with 100% great taste... and of course, naturally free of lactose and gluten, as it has always been.

RETAIL SCHOOL

Invest in a stock of publicity pictures, says Sally-Jayne Wright, and it'll more than pay for itself

Matt Kelly, owner of London deli Pistachio & Pickle, knows how important it is to be prepared. A magazine journalist rang him out of the blue for a quote and he supplied it along with a great selection of store images.

He said: "When the feature came out, our picture dominated the page. I soon realised why. Of all the photos people had given them, it was the best." Would you be ready for that surprise call? If not, read on.

Getting started

Make a list of all possible uses for photos. Social media. Your website. Your e-newsletter. Flyers for your Saturday sampling event. Posters for the shop. Then make a list of subjects, for example, that old-fashioned pushbike with your shop name on it; the head butcher with his team. If your cheese shop specialises in locally made, sheep's milk cheese, you'll need: a farm shot of the ewes; a close-up of cheesemaking in the dairy; an appetising cheese salad in your café and an assistant serving customers on the cheese counter.

Should you use a professional?

It's tempting to take the pictures yourself on your iPhone. Perhaps you are a talented amateur photographer. Even so, there's a difference between artistic shots that win competitions and commercial and newsworthy pictures that help sell your business and gain you publicity. As a freelance PR, I have placed many rather lightweight stories in local papers by supplying the right kind of picture with caption.

“Smile. You're ready to go public”

If you can't afford to pay a professional, avoid silly mistakes such as

- People wearing sunglasses or light-sensitive glasses which go dark
- Too many backs in the photo – not as inspiring as people's fronts
- Reflections in mirrors and shop windows, your thumb over the lens
- Shadows caused by shooting into the sun
- Pictures that are out of focus
- Failing to notice the background
- Rex, the dog, cocking his leg, or an ugly car park

To take successful photos, use the PICS rule

- P – People
I – Involvement
C – Composition
S – Symbol

A shot of Poppy (person) on the branded shop bicycle (symbol) delivering bread (involvement) to a customer is more interesting than Poppy posing outside the shop, or an empty shop which can look bleak.

Composition is about your 'eye for a picture'. If you can, frame the subject – perhaps shoot the garden café through the ancient stone arch or the cook through an archway of hanging copper pans. Don't have people walking out of the picture as it leads the eye away from your subject.

More top tips

Get closer, then closer again

You don't need to see every part of a person including his feet. If he is slicing pate, zoom in on the activity.

Take plenty With group shots, someone will blink and someone else will move his head. Taking lots helps ensure that everyone looks okay.

Be creative. View the subject from every angle, not just the most obvious. Stand on a ladder and shoot down, or crouch on the floor and shoot upwards.

Use the background

Include the shop logo on the wall and match red packaging on the shelf to Poppy's red apron. Don't forget your branding.

High resolution pictures

Website designers and publications need pictures which are at least 300dpi (dots per inch). If they are lower resolution than this, they lose clarity when blown up. If sending several hi-res photos by email, use picture-sharing software such as WeTransfer or Dropbox.
